PREFACE.

THIS IMPORTANT CABINET has been formed with much anxiety, intelligence and care, and no expense has been spared in collecting its unrivalled treasures. Mr. CUFF was occupied for forty years and upwards in investigating the science of Numismatology, with a view to the selection of such examples as were necessary to complete the several series, and never omitted an opportunity of procuring the best specimens that presented themselves from private sources, and at the public dispersion of the Dimsdale, Trattle, Thomas, Devonshire, and other collections of celebrity. That his zealous and well guided efforts have been crowned with success, will be seen on inspection of the Catalogue, which affords such an enumeration in point of extent, variety of types, moneyers, and dates, as has never before been exhibited.

The collection ranges from the earliest æra of English Numismatics through all stages of the progress of coinage up to the reign of Victoria, and presents the most important assemblage that has ever been submitted to public competition.

The British series contains very many extremely fine and extra rare specimens in gold, silver, and copper.

The ANGLO-SAXON COLLECTION is, without exception, the largest and most complete ever offered to public competition, and includes very many unique specimens, all being in the finest state. Some idea may be formed of its unexampled magnitude when it is mentioned that this portion of the collection alone extends over three days' sale.

Among the IRISH are some extremely rare and interesting specimens. The Siege coins are quite unrivalled, and there are also some fine proofs and patterns.

The SCOTCH COINS are extremely rich in silver and gold. The silver series contains the various Testoons and Half Testoons of Mary, with portrait, and the almost unique Forty Shilling Piece, in silver, of James VI.

The ANGLO-GALLIC are numerous and highly interesting, comprising Coins of Eleanor, Henry II, Richard II, Edward I and III, Edward the Black Prince, and the Henries. The GOLD comprises—Edward III, Leopard, Guiennois, Chaise, and other examples; the Black Prince, Leopard, Hardit, Chaise, and Guiennois; Richard II, Hardit, and the Mouton of Henry V, all being in the finest possible state.

It would be difficult from its extent to give even more than a sketch of the Collection, but the following may be cited as some of the more remarkable pieces:

The GOLD comprises—a Penny of Henry III.; Noble of Edward III. of his 20th year; Henry VII. Sovereign; Double Sovereign of Edward VI.; Mary's Ryal; Elizabeth's Ryal, two varieties; James I. Spur Ryal and Fifteen Shilling Piece; the curious and interesting Gold Piece given by Charles I. to Bishop Juxon on the morning of his execution; Oliver's Fifty and Twenty Shilling Pieces and Half Broad; Anne's Five Guinea Vigo Piece, and the A. R. Guinea; the three varieties of the Five Guinea Piece of George III.; unique Pattern for a Crown of George III.; and Pattern Crown of William IV.

Among the SPECIMENS IN SILVER may be mentioned, Stephen and Matilda's Penny; Richard III. Halfpenny; Perkin Warbeck's Groat; Henry VIII. Crown; Elizabeth's Sixpence, and Threepence, with the broad cross; Charles I. Oxford Twenty Shilling Piece, of fine work; the bare-headed Crown of Charles I., rev. the King on Horseback; a fine and an interesting collection of English Siege Coins; beautiful examples by Ramage, Simon, Briot, and Blondeau; the Two Shilling, Ninepence, and Sixpence of Oliver Cromwell; the Petition and Reddite Crowns, with one in tin; William III., Proof and Pattern Crowns; very curious Patterns for Crowns of George III. and IV.; with a profusion of superb patterns and proofs in gold, silver, and copper.

Among the GREEK and ROMAN will be found some exceedingly fine and rare coins in the different metals.

It may be reiterated with much truth, that the Series of English Coins from the earliest period to the reign of Victoria is most extraordinary as regards the rarity, number, and variety of the Pieces in gold, silver and copper, and embraces a profusion of patterns and proofs, very many of which are exclusively found in this remarkable Cabinet.
